ABOUT PAMELA MILLER

Owner and Principal Consultant, Pamela Miller, is a dynamic and effective leader, facilitator, trainer and motivational speaker, with exceptional organizational, analytical, and communication skills. She is successful at forging strong and effective relationships with elected officials, boards of directors, professional staff and community members.

Having worked a number of years in executive management and training and development, Pamela decided to gather some colleagues who share her passion for local government and talent development when she started her own consulting group several years ago.

Pamela holds a Master's Degree in Organizational Leadership and Bachelor's Degree in Business Administration.

Her team works with all levels of staff and elected officials and successfully conducts team development, training, and strategic planning facilitation. Pamela is certified in the delivery of Success Signals, an instrument designed to focus on understanding and developing communication styles.

Contact Pamela for your customized training and development needs.

“In an extreme fast growth environment Pamela demonstrated vision, operational control and superb people skills. Her focus, attention to detail and ability to navigate through all organizational levels made her an exemplary partner.”

Joe Roth, Operations Director, Greater Green Valley Health Education Association

“We discover that as human beings we can live in a possibility instead of in what we have inherited, that instead of just being a human being because we were born that way, we can declare the possibility of being for human beings.

This is the work of transformation:
bringing forth a breakthrough in the possibility of being human.”
